

Palate Press

The online wine magazine

2008 Raffaldini Montepulciano

WHO: Raffaldini

WHAT: Montepulciano

WHERE: Swan Creek, North Carolina

WHEN: 2008

In the mouth, strawberry flavors dominated with a structure of finely dusty, suede-like, lightly drying tannins, a light body and softer acids. It finished creamy, with a waxy edge. On the second day, a more distinct though faint aroma of rose petals accompanied the previously noted fruit. The fruit flavors became accented by a hibiscus-like note. Supple, smooth, fine, tannins and good acids and balance defined its structure. The finish was more truncated and more drying on the second day. AZP

<http://palatepress.com>