

2007 Domaine Eden Cabernet Sauvignon

WHO: Domaine Eden

WHAT: cabernet sauvignon (78%), merlot (7%), petit verdot (2%), cabernet franc (7%), malbec (1%)

WHERE: Santa Cruz Mountains, California

WHEN: 2007

A very nice, approachable cabernet blend. Attractive nose of lignonberries and anise, even a hint of sugar cookies, of all things. It has the advantage of being 13.5% alcohol, so it does not have the nose burn that so many high-alcohol cabs seem to have these days. Light tannins and pleasant fruit on the palate with hints of hoisin sauce (i.e. plums), but not a lingering finish. Should not be confused with Mount Eden Estate cab. Nevertheless, a solid, if unexciting, wine. Try with simply prepared steaks or roasts.

2007 Domaine Eden Cabernet Sauvignon

WHO: Domaine Eden

WHAT: cabernet sauvignon (78%), merlot (7%), petit verdot (2%), cabernet franc (7%), malbec (1%)

WHERE: Santa Cruz Mountains, California

WHEN: 2007

A very nice, approachable cabernet blend. Attractive nose of lignonberries and anise, even a hint of sugar cookies, of all things. It has the advantage of being 13.5% alcohol, so it does not have the nose burn that so many high-alcohol cabs seem to have these days. Light tannins and pleasant fruit on the palate with hints of hoisin sauce (i.e. plums), but not a lingering finish. Should not be confused with Mount Eden Estate cab. Nevertheless, a solid, if unexciting, wine. Try with simply prepared steaks or roasts.

2007 Domaine Eden Cabernet Sauvignon

WHO: Domaine Eden

WHAT: cabernet sauvignon (78%), merlot (7%), petit verdot (2%), cabernet franc (7%), malbec (1%)

WHERE: Santa Cruz Mountains, California

WHEN: 2007A very nice, approachable cabernet blend.

Attractive nose of lignonberries and anise, even a hint of sugar cookies, of all things. It has the advantage of being 13.5% alcohol, so it does not have the nose burn that so many high-alcohol cabs seem to have these days. Light tannins and pleasant fruit on the palate with hints of hoisin sauce (i.e. plums), but not a lingering finish. Should not be confused with Mount Eden Estate cab. Nevertheless, a solid, if unexciting, wine. Try with simply prepared steaks or roasts.

2007 Domaine Eden Cabernet Sauvignon

WHO: Domaine Eden

WHAT: cabernet sauvignon (78%), merlot (7%), petit verdot (2%), cabernet franc (7%), malbec (1%)

WHERE: Santa Cruz Mountains, California

WHEN: 2007

A very nice, approachable cabernet blend. Attractive nose of lignonberries and anise, even a hint of sugar cookies, of all things. It has the advantage of being 13.5% alcohol, so it does not have the nose burn that so many high-alcohol cabs seem to have these days. Light tannins and pleasant fruit on the palate with hints of hoisin sauce (i.e. plums), but not a lingering finish. Should not be confused with Mount Eden Estate cab. Nevertheless, a solid, if unexciting, wine. Try with simply prepared steaks or roasts.